Extension of Emergency Control Measures for the Bactrocera tau (Melon Fruit Fly)

セグロウリミバエBactrocera tauの緊急防除延長

Due to confirmed outbreaks of the Melon Fruit Fly, a pest parasitizing cucurbit crops, on the main island Okinawa and surrounding islands, the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries has extended the emergency control period until the end of March 2027. Control measures using sterile insects will continue. Furthermore, to prevent the spread of infection, restrictions on moving host plant fruits and other materials (except those passing routine inspections) outside the control area will also continue. To all citizens, we ask for your continued cooperation in controlling the Melon Fruit Fly.

To all farmers,

- Farmers cultivating plants subject to movement restrictions who have not yet applied for movement inspections, or who have changes to the plants cultivated or the location of their fields, should consult with the municipality where their fields are located.
- Thoroughly implement pest control, manage cultivation facilities, and dispose of unwanted fruit.

To all citizens

- In home gardens, please refrain from growing cucurbit plants, which are particularly susceptible to parasitism.
- Please be aware that fruits of plants subject to movement restrictions may not be taken out (shipped) outside the control area in principle.
