What is a Tsunami Evacuation Building?

This is a shelter which we can temporarily evacuate to when we have difficulty moving to a higher place when a "Tsunami Warning" or "Major Tsunami Warning" is announced, and evacuation advisory and mandatory evacuation orders are given.

Points to Remember When You Use a Tsunami Evacuation Building

- Most of the designated evacuation facilities are privately owned. There are some facilities that are usually locked for security purposes.
- Please check and remember multiple evacuation buildings in advance in case spaces get full.
- Tsunami Evacuation Buildings are only temporary evacuation sites. You must move to a designated site as soon as it is safe to do so.
- Please be very cautious. If you intentionally damage any materials that belong to the facility, you will be liable to pay damages.

Evacuation Basics: Faster, Farther, Higher

- If you are not physically impaired, evacuate to a high place without using your car. Once you evacuate, do not go back.
- If you are with elderly individuals or small kids and cannot quickly evacuate or you fail to escape, evacuate to a Tsunami Evacuation Building or high building closest to you.
- Evacuating with a car can cause bad traffic and be a threat to urgent evacuation. Evacuate on foot or bicycle if at all possible.
